The Charles Close Society was founded in 1980 to bring together all those with an interest in the maps and history of the Ordnance Survey of Great Britain and its counterparts in the island of Ireland. The Society takes its name from Colonel Sir Charles Arden-Close, OS Director General from 1911 to 1922, and initiator of many of the maps now sought after by collectors.

The Society publishes a wide range of books and booklets on historic OS map series and its journal, Sheetlines, is recognised internationally for its specialist articles on Ordnance Survey-related topics.

Ordnance Survey 1:50,000 (Landranger) map cover designs

Lez Watson

The mid-1960s saw the Central Office of Information take over the design of all Ordnance Survey publications. As official designers they produced the first of the uniform covers still in use today.<sup>1</sup> The new design appeared on the one-inch map in 1969. This included a radically simple new Ordnance Survey title on a scarlet cover with black lettering, with a large location map surrounded by a slim white border. It was roundly denounced both in the press and by users for its lack of imagination.

When the first sheets of the new 1:50,000 map series appeared in the spring of 1974, they sported a cover essentially the same as the one-inch map, except the cover colour became ‘magenta’ – usually called purple by the buying public. This is described by Roger Hellyer as ‘Ordnance Survey House Style, 1968’. The new Ordnance Survey colophon, a north-pointing crossed arrow between the letters O and S, representing both a bench mark and a magnetic needle was developed by the Central Office of Information.<sup>2</sup> The map was given the series name Landranger in 1980.

Over time the covers have developed to include colour photographic images in place of the front cover location map, along with a host of tourist and other information obscuring the clean lines of the original product. Today the well-known ‘purple’ map can be seen in action at many locations around Britain by both professional and amateur users.

The Landranger paper map product had recently appeared to be nearing the end of its useful life, but paper map production was contracted out to Butler Tanner & Dennis (now Dennis Maps) in 2010 following the realisation of the value of ‘hard copy’ mapping to the general public.<sup>3</sup> Retail-friendly digital products derived from 1:50,000 data are becoming common, especially custom tailored sheets.<sup>4</sup>

OS underwent a comprehensive rebranding of all its products in 2015. A new ‘fresh’ colophon was created, and paper maps now come with a free digital download.<sup>5</sup>

The details below list cover designs, numbered 1 to 7, with stepwise changes given in lower case letters. Details are given in the following order: front cover, price (if stated), rear cover, the spine, inside cover, and date the cover change appeared (where known).

Appeared February 2011.

6t Rear: shaded sheet overlaps on index diagram.

Appeared March 2011.

6u Inside: Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) logo appears under the 'Contact Us' text.

Appeared February 2012.

7 *Fifth photographic cover (revised edition format) (figure 10)

7a Front: white title on magenta; silver and grey design. New logo (“designed to reflect the organisation’s work mapping Britain’s towns, cities and countryside”)<sup>17</sup> top right corner, below sheet number. ‘Now includes mobile download’ logo.

Rear: location map at top, index map extract below. Other information at bottom including copyright year.

Spine: new white logo, white title on magenta, sheet number black on silver.

Inside: Series and other map information, including Explorer (sheet 379), Tour (Lake District & Cumbria) and custom made. Mobile download instructions, and scratch off panel.

Announced February 2015, appeared February 2016.

left: figure 10

Note: In June 2015, OS discontinued using alphanumeric editions codes on small scale maps, replacing them with ‘month year’ code representing ‘date of publication’.<sup>18</sup> The change was not reflected on the Landranger cover before 2016.

Opposite: Ordnance Survey 1:50,000 map - editions in print

<sup>18</sup> Sheets carried the previous or most recent partial revision date. A few sheets with ‘month year’ formats - 42, 55, 62, 65, 79, 103 and 127 - began to appear at this time but still with design 6u covers.
